There's plenty to celebrate in Hackney, with the borough's young people achieving better and better exam results.

GCSE grades have shot up 73 per cent in five years, with 54 per cent of students gaining at least five A* to C grades this year, a three percentage point increase on 2006.

Jules Pipe, Mayor of Hackney, said: "These are fantastic results, Hackney is narrowing the gap with the national average, and with five new secondary schools and unprecedented investment into our existing schools I am confident we can improve still further."

"I pay tribute to the hard work of Hackney's teachers, parents and governors, and of course the students themselves."

Clapton Girls' Technology College students were among the borough's many high achievers this year.

Sixteen-year-old Amelia Kirkland scored four A*s, six As, and a B in her GCSEs.

A number of Hackney's schools saw significant improvements on last year's results, including Cardinal Pole where 61 per cent of pupils got five A* to C grades compared to 51 per cent last year.

While at Hackney Free and Parochial School, 47 per cent of students got five good GCSEs, up from just 18 per cent in 2002.

For many of our A-level students it's next stop university after great results across the borough.

Hackney Community College saw an amazing 100 per cent pass rate in Maths, English Literature, Economics and Business Studies, with former Haggerston School pupil Abida Begum, 17, from Shoreditch, notching up three As and a C in her AS levels.

And it's not just the borough's teenagers who are doing well, either, with Hackney's seven-year-olds now the most improved in the country.

Combined totals for Key Stage 1 test scores for reading, writing and maths have made a 7 point leap since last year, the fastest increase of anywhere in the UK.

Alan Wood, chief executive of The Learning Trust, said: "Hackney primary schools are doing a magnificent job and giving our children a solid grounding in reading, writing and maths."

"Our school results are improving far faster than the rest of the country's in every single age group."

Fourteen-year-olds' Key Stage 3 results are also on the up, with English and Maths seeing an increase of 5 and 4 per cent respectively on last year, and Science up an impressive 8 per cent.

Moving on up, moving on out

The achievements of young people leaving care in Hackney have been celebrated.

The 16 to 24-year-olds, who all worked hard while in care to move on to employment, training, or further education, attended an awards ceremony along with their friends and family.

Students going on to attend institutions such as the University of East London and Thames Valley University, received a £250 award and a certificate for successfully completing an academic year.

Some of the qualifications the 50 care leavers are undertaking, or have completed, range from a BA degree, to BTEC National Diploma in Care.

Fatima L'Homme, 23, has completed her first year studying for a BA in Performing Arts and Community Development.

She said: "It was a really positive event, definitely inspiring – there were lots of speeches which were encouraging."

Performances of music and drama featured during the event at Hackney Town Hall on 30 August.

Members of Hackney Youth Parliament made a presentation and a football team of care leavers, which recently won a match against the police, were recognised. The event was also a chance to acknowledge three young people who took part in the Advantage Hackney Programme, a new 26-week work experience scheme with the Council, organised in partnership with Groundwork East London.

The achievements of young people who completed the Skills for Life literacy programme run by The Learning Trust as part of the Leaving Care Service were also noted.

Cllr Rita Krishna, Cabinet Member for Children and Young People, said: "I would like to congratulate our care leavers on all their hard work in education, employment, and training."

Not so bad lads and lasses

HACKNEY youth found themselves in the wars when they took part in a programme focused on teamwork and discipline.

Thirty young people, aged between 13 to 21, were pushed to their limits by serving soldiers on the personal development courses at Woolwich Army Barracks during the summer holidays.

They threw themselves over an assault course, camped out overnight in a spooky forest and learnt how to cook and survive on meagre rations.

The courses were a joint effort between police officers from Chatham Safer Neighbourhood Team, the Army and the Pedro, Gascoigne and Morningside youth clubs in Hackney.

Sgt Homre Varley said: "This is a great step in the process of building positive and constructive bridges between young people and the police."

"The idea behind this project is to improve the young people's self-confidence and belief in their abilities, whilst also equipping them with transferable skills that they can use in later life.

The personal development days were supported by the Council, TfL, FACT (Federation Against Copyright Theft) and Tesco.

Summer cycle course graduates show off their new wheels

Freewheeling fun

Hackney youngsters going back to school this week have something to show off to their friends – a new bike.

Fourteen young people from the Morningside and Gascoyne estates in Homerton were presented with their new wheels after graduating from a summer programme of cycle maintenance classes.

A demonstration of BMX bike tricks also went down well with the young cycle fans during the event at West Reservoir Centre on 31 August.

Bikes and commemorative certificates were presented to the group of 12-15-year-olds by Superintendent Leroy Logan, of Hackney police, and Cllr Julius Nkafu, Cabinet Adviser for Crime and Community Safety.

The REPAIR bike maintenance scheme was made up of four weekly workshops during August, and aimed at increasing the numbers of cyclists in the borough, as well as giving young people opportunities to keep fit and have fun.

A 13-year-old from the Morningside estate who took part said: "I really enjoyed the classes, and I'm now confident I can keep my bike in good condition."

The scheme was set up by the Council's Sustainable Transport Unit and Chatham Ward Safer Neighbourhoods Team, with unclaimed stolen bicycles provided by Shoreditch police.

Cllr Alan Laing, Cabinet Member for Neighbourhoods, said: "This was a great way to encourage a safer, cleaner, and greener borough. Not only did the children get to own a bike, but they have also learned how to maintain it, cycle safely and get to socialise with others during the course."

A bridge to the future

The Bridge Academy is hosting two open evenings for parents and carers choosing a secondary school place for their child in September 2008.

It's a chance to pick up a prospectus and meet the Principal, Sunita Bains, and chair of governors, Jeremy Palmer. Ms Bains said: "I hope parents take this opportunity to come along and hear about our vision and plans for learning and teaching and to find out more about how to apply for a place."

The academy opened this month in temporary buildings in Audrey Street, Haggerston. It will move to its permanent home, in Laburnum Street next September. The open evenings are at Ocean, Mare Street, from 7pm on 12 and 13 September.

Cheap & chic

THE Hoxton Hotel has been named as one of the best budget boutique hotels in the UK by The Observer.

The hotel in Great Eastern Street, EC2, was one of 12 hotels identified as 'luxury budget' by the newspaper and the only one in East London. It is an example of growing tourism within the borough, which brings in almost £38million every year, as visitors are attracted by the thriving nightlife, world-class contemporary art, diverse food, culture and heritage. Clive Tritton, Renaisi Director of Enterprise and Employment, said: "Congratulations to the Hoxton Hotel. The accommodation sector is a very important growth market for Hackney and one that the Council is committed to expanding."

Butcher back in East End

A RARE red-backed shrike has been spotted in Rainham Marshes. Known as the Butcher Bird, this species used to be a common summer visitor to Britain, but the population crashed to near extinction in the 1990s. This sparrow-sized hunter gets its nickname from a habit of catching bees, wasps, small rodents and birds and impaling them on thorns and twigs to eat later. The young bird, with its hooked bill and keen eyes, has been devouring and storing local insect life and attracted a steady stream of visitors to the RSPB reserve. If you want to get a closer look, there are organised walks every Wednesday or Friday. For more info call: 01708 899 840 or e-mail: rainham.marshes@rspb.org.uk

An open heart & home

THE BBC's Family Wanted campaign is coming to Hackney.

The drive to encourage people to adopt or become foster carers is backed by the Council's Adoption and Fostering Unit. And as part of the campaign, the BBC is holding a drop-in event in Shoreditch on Sunday, 30 September.

It will give people the chance to meet adoption agency staff and find out more about what is involved. Local foster carers, adopters and adoptees will also be on hand to talk about their experiences. Presenter Nicky Campbell, the face of the campaign, said: "I was adopted shortly after I was born and couldn't have wished for better parents. This is a hugely important campaign and I hope it can help other children find a family and a future."

More than 4,000 young people need adoption across the UK every year and there is a shortage of over 10,000 foster carers.

Family Wanted takes place at Rich Mix, 35-47 Bethnal Green Road, E1, from 2-6pm. For details call:

0800 888 809, or visit: bbc.co.uk/familywanted.

Remembering abolition

Balloon release outside Hackney Town Hall to mark a UN international day of remembrance

The skies were filled with black balloons as part of a Hackney Museum event to mark the abolition of the Slave Trade Act.

The event in the Town Hall square was planned to coincide with a UN international day of remembrance on 23 August.

Local poet Baden Prince and Skinners School pupil

Bianca Simpson read out their own verses about what slavery means to them.

They then helped Hackney Museum staff to release 100 balloons. Baden Prince said: "It is important for people to remember that slavery existed and its impact on black people and the diaspora."

"My poem was about marvelling at the huge strides that black people have made despite slavery. It was a poem about triumph."

The museum in Reading Lane has an ongoing exhibition, Abolition 07, which opened in March to mark the bicentenary of Britain's abolition of the transatlantic slave trade.

Preserving Dalston history

A CONSERVATION project to preserve and enhance an endangered terrace of historic buildings has begun.

Some of the 19th century properties in Dalston Lane, which sits in a conservation area, are empty and have fallen into a significant state of disrepair.

The Council is now working to ensure they do not deteriorate further in readiness for a longer-term, full regeneration project, which is supported by English Heritage.

Urgent works to make sure some of the buildings are weatherproof, such as repairing roofs, propping walls, supporting beams, and covering windows is already underway.

The Council has been working with freeholders of the terrace to ensure this valuable piece of Hackney's heritage is not lost, and to bring an important part of the town centre back into use.

Many of the properties retain original features, and Council conservation officers are overseeing the work to ensure features of architectural value are retained wherever possible.

Cllr Guy Nicholson, Cabinet Member for Regeneration and the 2012 Olympic & Paralympic Games, said: "The Council is committed to enhancing Hackney's built heritage and using Conservation Area policy to bring this about.

"This terrace is part of the Dalston Lane (West) Conservation Area and a number of properties have been left to deteriorate with no effort being made to renovate or refurbish."

"The terrace has the potential to make a significant contribution to the wider social and economic well-being of Dalston Town Centre."

"The condition and ongoing deterioration of a number of properties within the terrace is a matter of considerable concern for residents and businesses."

Running parallel to this work are plans exploring a longer-term strategy to regenerate the terrace. The Council has commissioned the Heritage of London Trust Operations to prepare a report to help shape this strategy.

English Heritage has already supported the project with initial funding and technical guidance.

By Emma Britton

Renovation work will be carried out on 46-86a Dalston Lane and 457 and 459 Queensbridge Road, E8.

Thousands of counterfeit DVDs seized

Over 3,000 counterfeit DVDs, including a hoard of vile porn, have been seized in a raid on a Hackney home.

Seven men, aged between 22 and 42, were arrested during the early morning bust in Amhurst Road and have since appeared in court.

Around 20 police officers stormed the building, which they believe was being used as a distribution point for DVD sellers across Hackney.

The thousands of dodgy DVDs, including beastiality movies as well as mainstream films, were found stashed in bags in bedrooms.

The operation on 24 August was led by police Safer Neighbourhood Teams from central Hackney and Chatham wards, with assistance from the Federation Against Copyright Theft (FACT).

Sergeant Julian Collinson said: "The assumption that film piracy is a 'victimless crime' is incorrect.

"There is increasing recognition that film piracy is a crime of significance with many illegal vendors having links to organised crime and explicit pornographic material being on view and sold to minors.

"This is a real menace to the local community and we are tackling it robustly, in order to stamp out this activity in Hackney. Local residents have identified pirate DVD selling is a problem they would like to see addressed and as Safer Neighbourhood officers, we are dedicated to dealing with locally identified concerns and issues, reducing crime and the fear of crime in Hackney."

The raid was part of an ongoing operation to target and disrupt pirate DVD selling in Hackney, which has been identified by residents as a problem they want addressed.

Cllr Alan Laing, Cabinet Member for Neighbourhoods, said: "Removing these DVDs at the distribution point is a very important step in reducing the number of them being sold in the borough.

"The fact that vendors who sell illegal DVDs will offer X-rated films and even those containing beastiality to anyone of any age is very concerning.

"People who buy them do need to be aware of the connection between buying a counterfeit DVD and giving money to organised crime.

"It's an illegal activity which is taken very seriously and carries a maximum prison sentence of 10 years."

Four of the men arrested were jailed for four weeks for possession of counterfeit goods when they appeared before Thames Magistrates Court on 25 August.

Three other men had their hearings adjourned, with two of them remanded in custody.

This February a multi-agency operation between the Council, police and FACT led to six prolific private DVD sellers receiving 10 year ASBOs banning them from entering Hackney Town Centre.

Good morning Vietnam

DELEGATES from Vietnam and the UN spent a day in Hackney on a social work fact-finding tour. The profession is in its infancy as Vietnam has experienced a rapid transformation since the 1990s, coupled with emerging social problems such as family breakdown and rural migration. Child protection is a major issue; the country faces serious problems with human trafficking and child abuse. The visit was intended to help the Vietnamese government gain more information on developing a social work infrastructure. Delegates were keen to meet Council staff and get a behind the scenes look at how Children's Social Care operates in Hackney. The visitors also learnt about the borough's diverse population, and large Vietnamese community.

Olympic green light

PLANS for the Olympics, a third of which will be in Hackney, have got the go ahead. This paves the way for preparation on constructing venues and infrastructure for the 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games, as well as the legacy Olympic Park. The Olympic Delivery Authority planning decisions team recommended the 10,000-page planning applications – among the largest in European history – for approval at a seven-hour public meeting last month. The plans now go to the Government Office for London and the Greater London Authority for final approval.

Take inspiration

A DAY of events to provide inspiration for young people in Hackney has been organised by the Robert Levy Foundation on 15 September.

It kicks off at 1pm with a show at Hackney Empire featuring special guests Jason Farrel (Channel 5 News), Robert Alan (X-Factor finalist) and Tim Campbell (winner of the first Apprentice TV show).

This will be followed by a careers fair at Ocean at 5pm. There will also be a chance to win a car and a bike.

The foundation was set up by the parents of Robert Levy, a Hackney schoolboy stabbed to death by another teenager while trying to help a neighbour.

His parents, Ian and Pat Levy, said: "Our son's death was a tragedy that shook the community here in Hackney. This event is not only a celebration of Robert's life, it is also a way of showing young people the opportunities available to them."

A stone bench to commemorate Robert will also be unveiled in the Town Hall Square on the day.

Champion for your local environment

If you feel strongly about recycling, becoming a Green Champion is a great opportunity to do more in your local community.

The Council scheme is an ideal way to make a personal contribution to a cleaner, greener Hackney and also a chance to meet like-minded people.

A Green Champion can be anyone who lives or works in Hackney and is passionate about recycling and environmental issues.

The amount of time you volunteer is completely up to you, but every little bit helps.

Green Champions act as the eyes and ears of the Council's recycling team, reporting issues like dumped rubbish and missed collections. They encourage friends, family and colleagues to recycle and also help out at recycling events, spreading the green message to fellow residents.

The scheme is a great way to socialise with the community and keep up to date with recycling issues. The Council arranges regular meetings so Green Champions can get together with the recycling team to feed back ideas and views about recycling facilities in Hackney. To find out more about becoming a Green Champion, call: 020 8356 6688.

All stories by Annie Gilbert, Recycling Communications Officer

Name: Hannah Ahmed
Ward: Brownswood
What do you recycle?
Most of my household waste.
What methods of waste prevention do you use?

Re-using anything I can that really doesn't need to be thrown away, for example yoghurt pots, bags. I always carry cloth bags with me to stop using plastic ones, and have a very big handbag! This means I can always refuse bags offered to me in shops. I always try and buy products that come in reusable or recyclable packaging. I get organic vegetables delivered to my door, which are less packaged than those in supermarkets. The company also delivers a variety of environmentally friendly cleaning products, which can be added to your order. Again reducing packaging by buying products that can be refilled in some shops. I do not have paper statements from my bank, I do banking online instead. I always take unwanted items to charity shops. Generally I think before I throw anything away.

How did you first get into recycling and waste prevention?

I think a lot of awareness has been raised over the last few years. When I became a Green Champion it gave me a lot more insight into how much more I can do to help.
Tell us why you're a Green Champion?
It's a great way to try and help the environment by acting locally and hopefully making a difference to global environmental issues. It's also a great way to meet like-minded people, exchange ideas and make new friends.
Give us your top recycling or waste prevention tip?
Always think twice about how an item could be used in other ways before throwing it/recycling it. Prevention is always better than a cure!

Name: Rafe Benli
Ward: Queensbridge
What do you recycle?
I try to recycle as much as possible, paper, plastic bottles, glass, cardboard, and kitchen waste. I also have my own compost bin where I recycle my garden waste.

What methods of waste prevention do you use?
Wherever possible I try not to use too many plastic bags, reusable bags are better, although I do recycle any plastic bags eventually or try to find other uses for them. I look at what I buy and try to reduce the amount of packaged products. All my kitchen waste goes in the Blue Bin for recycling. I also home compost.
How did you first get into recycling and waste prevention?
I like to think I am a keen environmentalist, and I wanted to make a difference, because I am on first name terms with a lot of local residents I thought it would be an ideal opportunity to get people to reduce, reuse and recycle as much as possible.

Tell us why you're a Green Champion?
I thought it would be an ideal way to promote my green credentials and it would aid me in my discussions with residents, who I regularly talk with on issues of waste and recycling. By becoming a Green Champion I feel like I am part of something, that will hopefully bring change for the future, and thus a better environment for us all to live in.
Give us your top recycling or waste prevention tip?
I really do say no to multiple plastic bags, I do not see the need, and we are constantly offered new plastic bags daily. Always carry a cloth bag, or reuse a plastic bag. Reduce the amount of packaging you buy, where possible.

Name: Jo Homan
Ward: Brownswood
What do you recycle?
Paper, cardboard, glass, cans, tin foil, plastic bottles, cloth, batteries, Tetra Paks and drink cartons.

What methods of waste prevention do you use?
I compost all my food and garden waste in my garden – wormery and compost bins. Grow some food, get food delivered at home, bulk buy and buy larger containers where possible (eg rice, laundry liquid), use leftovers. Use cloth bags and reuse plastic bags. Buy clothes from charity shops, use old clothes as dusters, use washable nappies, buy fewer clothes and gadgets but pay for good quality, ask for clothes as children's presents or specific toys I know they'll use. Keep only the books I would actually re-read, put unwanted books on greenmetropolis.co.uk and buy books from there.

Tip bath water directly into the toilet cistern, put bowl in bathroom sink to collect water, eg from running tap to get hot water, keep covered bucket in kitchen to collect water, eg from rinsing lettuce, use two water butts. Religiously unplug phone chargers, use low energy bulbs and rechargeable batteries.
How did you first get into recycling and waste prevention?
Was it at work, trying to get them to recycle paper? Or was it the Green Boxes at home? Maybe it was a combination of both plus a growing awareness of the global impact of over-consumption on climate.
Tell us why you're a Green Champion?

Meeting others who share my goals, and learning more about what Hackney Council's recycling team is up to makes me feel involved in the solution to the problems we humans have created. I particularly enjoyed the Be Creative festival, which the Green Champions helped organise, because it's exciting and good fun.
Give us your top recycling or waste prevention tip?
To manage items you leave on standby (mobile phones, TV, DVD players, computer), plug everything in your lounge into a big extension board with a switch. Mount this on an accessible wall and make sure you switch it off before you go to bed.

A blue lining

COMPOSTABLE liners for the Blue Bin kitchen waste scheme have been introduced by the Council's recycling team.

People can only use one type of liner – Wenterra Bio Bags. These have been approved by London Waste Limited, who compost the food waste produced in Hackney.

If you use other brands of liners, or plastic bags, your food waste will not be collected.

A group of recycling canvassers will be knocking on the doors of all residents, who currently take part in the Blue Bin scheme, to drop off a free sample of 10 liners, and to explain how they work.

The liners cost 99p for 10 kitchen caddy liners, £3.99 for 52 & £4.99 for 25 large outdoor Blue Bin liners. They can be bought from the local shops listed below or online at www.gardeningdelights.com

Shop	Address
Costcutter	160-162 Sandringham Rd, E8
C & C Décor	352A Mare St, E8

How to use new compostable liners:

1. Put a compostable liner in your kitchen caddy.
2. Collect your food waste in the kitchen caddy.
3. Tie the top of the liner together and remove the full compostable liner from the caddy.
4. Put the full compostable liner in your large Blue Bin ready for recycling. Remember to bring the handle to the forward position, as this will lock the bin, keeping smells in and vermin out.

High-rise recycling

A TRIAL is currently underway to work out the best way for people living in estates and high-rise properties to recycle food waste.

The scheme provides 5000 properties with the opportunity to recycle their food scraps, which are then turned into compost and used back on their estate.

Those participating in the trial are preventing waste from rotting in rubbish chutes and bins, reducing the likelihood of vermin such as mice and foxes in the area, and will helping make Hackney a cleaner, greener borough.

The Making of the Marshes

Hackney Marshes are famous as the home of grassroots football, the place that gave birth to the spectacular careers of England greats such as David Beckham and Bobby Moore.

Host to the highest concentration of pitches in Europe – 73 – the Marshes provide enough space for an amazing 1,606 people to play the beautiful game at the same time.

But before today's fixtures could kick off, the goalposts had to be moved – literally.

Around 118 years ago, a group of boys were having a kick around on the Marshes when they were ordered to leave and their goalposts taken away.

Rev Douglas of the Eton Mission, Hackney Wick, was so alarmed the players had been booted off, that he took matters into his own hands.

He began a campaign to ensure the Marshes were designated as a space for local people's use.

Following a lengthy process, the Marshes were sold for £75,000 and placed under the control of London County Council.

A formal ceremony took place on 21 July 1894, to dedicate the Marshes to the use and enjoyment of the public forever more. At the time, the Earl of Meath declared them to be "the most magnificent playground in the world".

Even before this, the Marshes had a colourful history, with two sides trying to score goals of a very different nature.

In the ninth century, King Alfred led England to a victory over Denmark on the Marshes. The Vikings had sailed up the Thames and reached the River Lea. To stop the enemy advancing further, the King ordered channels to be cut to divert the current of the Lea and reduce its depth.

This left the Danish boats aground and unable to return to the Lea mouth and on to the Thames and the wide open sea beyond.

And it was King Alfred's strategy which created the Marshes as we know them today. Formerly marshy ground was converted into dry fields of fertile meadow, where local people were later allowed to graze their animals.

But the Marshes were still susceptible to flooding, and in 1775 the Lea's banks broke. Waters rose so high that people were forced to live in the upstairs of their houses, with food and other supplies being brought to them by boat.

The following year, an Act was passed for further improvement to the River Lea by forming canals or cuts in different parts of its course from Hertford to the River Thames.

Highwayman Dick Turpin used to hide out on the Marshes

Crime ran wild on the Marshes, and notorious highwayman Dick Turpin frequently hid out there.

Competitive sport also thrived on the Marshes, and in the 18th century it was of a brutal nature. Cock-fighting and rabbit coursing were favourites, and in 1791, a crowd of at least 3,000 gathered to see an afternoon of bull baiting. The beast broke loose and tossed an elderly man, but he was not hurt. And later that afternoon, a desperate prize fight was fought between a chimney sweep and a butcher.

Today, the Marshes are still a magnet for football, cricket, rugby, walks and kite-flying. But thankfully activities are far more peaceful than their historical equivalents.

Have your say on improvements to the Marshes

HACKNEY residents and people from across London who enjoy using the Marshes have a chance to help shape plans for future improvements.

These views will be vital in helping an application for further funding succeed and in deciding what improvements are priorities for the Marshes.

The Council and the London Development Agency have already secured £3.5million for improved football pitches and changing rooms.

This money is a result of the London 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games and the Council investing in sports facilities.

They now plan to apply for extra cash by working with the Football Association and Sport England, and potential sponsors.

Paint the town

FOR 180 years the Berger paint factory in Homerton was a major part of the local landscape.

It was founded in 1780, by Lewis Berger, a German immigrant who had moved to Britain about 20 years earlier, and needed a new site for his rapidly expanding paint business.

At the Homerton factory different pigments were manufactured and chemists continually experimented to create new colours or find better ways of making old ones.

The 'recipe' books they created are fascinating. Instructions are written in a very similar style to traditional cookery books, although the ingredients are not quite what Delia might recommend.

For instance, a 1830 recipe for Indian Blue Wash states: "Take 21lb Madras Indigo No.2 powder & sift quite fine. Add to it 6lb Sulphate Barytes, mix these well together with water."

Another for Prussian Blue says: "Take 3lb of ox blood, dried and reduced into a kind of small scales." The company's chemists had to be particularly ingenious during the Second World War, when strict rationing of many ingredients made it impossible to stick to regular recipes.

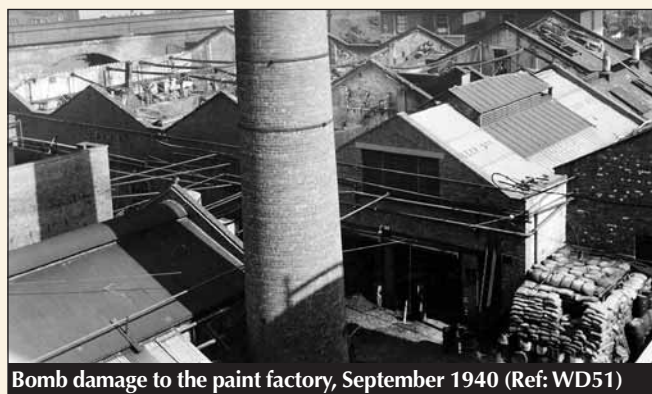

However paint was in high demand for preventing rust in everything from shells to ships, and for camouflaging tanks, Nissan huts and aerodromes.

Berger also produced Gas Detector Paint – a sickly, yellow-green paint that would turn bright red if exposed to gas.

The factory at Homerton had shut down by 1960, but the nearby Berger Road and Berger Primary School still commemorate the site.

Health advice

By Dr John Coakley

MANY women suffer from difficulties with their bowel and bladder function. This can range from urinary and faecal incontinence, bowels problems, or some form of vaginal, bladder or bottom prolapse. These are technically known as pelvic floor disorders or dysfunction (PFD).

PFD mainly affects women, who often suffer in silence. There is a lot of stigma and embarrassment associated with incontinence and related problems. As a consequence, many delay seeking medical help.

We tend to assume that these kinds of problems only affect the elderly, but in actual fact they can affect many young women. PFD is so common some studies have shown these conditions can impact on the quality of life for one third of the adult female population.

To try to help overcome the embarrassment, we have developed a new service at Homerton for women with PFD. They are seen by a team of specialists, including doctors, nurses, continence advisors and physiotherapists who can address the range of problems they might be experiencing. This service also provides a community support group where women can meet to share their experiences and learn from speakers who attend the session.

The service at Homerton is novel, in that after initial one-to-one consultations, women are offered the opportunity to attend group education and advice programmes to help them learn to manage their problems more easily, so that it does not affect their quality of life or lifestyle.

The message is clear. If you have urinary or faecal problems, do not feel embarrassed about this. It's a common problem and you are not alone. Go to your GP to discuss the matter and, if appropriate, you will be referred to this service where your concerns will be addressed in a sensitive and holistic manner. ## have your say

Boost for London Fields

AN ultra modern games area is set to replace a rundown football pitch in London Fields and we want your thoughts on the proposals.

The park is suffering from decline and needs significant modernisation to bring it back into good community use.

The plan is to provide better sporting facilities, in turn improving the surrounding area and helping London Fields gain Green Flag status. The award recognises the best green spaces in England and Wales. Hackney Downs, Clissold, Haggerston, and Springfield parks already have Green Flag Awards.

A six week consultation with residents, community groups and park users will give everyone the chance to suggest what sports and facilities should be available. Responses will also influence floodlighting and the final size and location of the Multi Use Games Area (MUGA).

If you would like to have your say or find out more about the consultation, contact Rob Brown on: 020 8356 2970, or e-mail: rob.brown@hackney.gov.uk

Dog control

TOUGH new measures are being proposed to combat nuisance dog fouling and we would like to hear residents' views.

It will soon be an offence for any person in charge of a dog that defecates on any designated land not to remove the faeces. These areas include cemeteries, parks, recreational areas, public roads and footpaths.

Anyone who commits an offence under the provisions of the Dog Fouling Control Order, faces a magistrates court conviction and a fine of up to £1,000.

The Council also intends to issue £80 Fixed Penalty Notices and to prosecute those who fail to pay them.

Disabled people in charge of guide dogs for the blind or other support dogs will normally be exempt.

The consultation period runs from 10 September to 12 October. Write to:

Freepost RLYK-SJEG-GH2C, Hackney Council, Environmental Enforcement Team, Dog Fouling Control Order, 28-32 Independent Place, Shacklewell Lane, E8 2HE. Alternatively e-mail: eucharia.mbonu@hackney.gov.uk

For more information visit: www.hackney.gov.uk/dogfouling

Car sharing

WE want to hear residents' and business owners' thoughts on Hackney Car Club and its proposed parking bays.

The pay-as-you-drive rental scheme offers people the opportunity to use a modern, reliable vehicle without having to worry about tax, parking permits, servicing or repairs.

Club members can book online or over the phone as little as 30 minutes before they travel, and use smart cards to unlock the vehicle. At the end of the journey the car is left in a dedicated on-street parking bay.

It is hoped the scheme will help relieve parking and congestion pressures and open up car hire to those who couldn't normally afford it.

Send your comments in by 20 September to: Tom McCourt, Assistant Director, 263 Mare Street, E8 3HT.

For more info call: 020 8356 3000 or visit: www.hackney.gov.uk/carclub

OPENHOUSE HACKNEY

TAKE the chance to go through the keyhole this month as 28 of Hackney's most interesting buildings throw open their doors to the public, by Emma Britton.

As part of the Capital's biggest architectural festival - Open House London - residents can tour the borough's iconic buildings free of charge and learn more about their design features.

From the award-winning Rooftop Nursery to the Art Deco of Hackney Town Hall and even an environmentally friendly family home, a whole host of properties will be on show from 15 to 16 September.

The Building Exploratory, a Hackney-based charity focusing on architecture, will host an exhibition and activity trail over the weekend.

It will also be a chance to take part in the first major public viewing of the London 2012 Olympic Park.

Guided bus tours of the 2.5sq km site will show how clearance and demolition work has got underway since the Olympic Delivery Authority took over the site just over a month ago. Book in advance on: 020 3023 6056.

Cllr Guy Nicholson, Cabinet Member for Regeneration and the 2012 Olympic & Paralympic

Games, said: "Well-designed buildings and public spaces, whether they are large or small, are a vital element in enhancing our neighbourhoods."

"Getting the chance to go behind the closed doors of public and private buildings to experience first-hand some of this great architecture free of charge is an opportunity not to be missed."

A total of 660 of London's most exceptional buildings, parks and open spaces will be open to the public as part of the 15th annual Open House London event.

For a complete list, opening times and further details, visit: www.openhouse.org.uk

Fairmule House
23-35 Waterson St, E2

Explore the largest solid-timber constructed mixed-use building in the UK, comprising 11 flats and seven work units. Instead of using steel or concrete for its structure, this property uses solid timber laminated panels for its walls, roof and floors. There are many green features and bespoke public artworks throughout. Light pours in through the large number of windows creating an open feel. The architect and timber contractor will be on site to answer questions.

OPENHOUSE

Almshouse at the Geffrye Museum
Kingsland Road, E2

Visit one of the Geffrye Museum's historic 18th century almshouses which has been fully restored to its original condition, offering a rare glimpse into the lives of London's poor and elderly in former times.

Almshouses have existed for over 1,000 years enabling people in need to retain their independence and to live in their local community. They aim to provide independent living for needy people, mostly elderly, with a high standard of affordable housing in their community.

Round Chapel
Lower Clapton Road, E5

This Grade II listed non-conformist chapel for 1,000 people was built between 1869 and 1871 and comprises the Round Chapel Arts Centre on Lower Clapton Road owned by the Hackney Historic Buildings Trust and the Round Chapel Old School Rooms on Powerscroft Road owned by Clapton Park United Reformed Church.

Highlights include its innovative cast-iron columns and tracery. It has been newly restored as the Centre for the Performing Arts.

Hackney Town Hall
Mare Street, E8

Guided tours around the Town Hall on Saturday (15 Sept) will highlight the exceptional Art Deco interiors, which the Council intends to renovate to their former glory in the near future.

Much original work remains intact including fine light fittings, panelling, floor surfaces and doors. Natural light pours in from a glass ceiling.

The main reception areas, ground and first floor, council chamber and main committee room will be included in the tour.

Village Underground, 54 Holywell Lane, EC2

Visit these unusual artists' studios inside recycled tube train carriages. Sitting on reclaimed land on top of an abandoned railway viaduct, this creative use of space provides an affordable area for artists to work in the heart of Shoreditch.

Village Underground also includes a restored Victorian warehouse with many inspiring architectural features, from the huge void of the main atrium, with its 10-metre high, glass panelled ceiling, to the fabulous Victorian brickwork of its 19th century vaults.

St Augustine's Tower
The Narroway, off Mare Street, E8

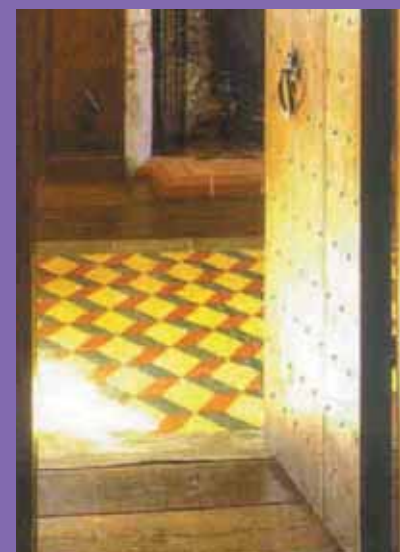

The Tower in St John-at-Hackney Churchyard Gardens, is Grade I listed. Dating back to the 13th century, St Augustine's Tower is all that remains of the original medieval parish church, which was demolished in the late 18th century to build a larger church. It survived because there were insufficient funds at the time to add a bell tower to the new church. Take the opportunity to explore all areas including the roof and clock chamber, with a working late 16th/early 17th century clock.

Sutton House
2 and 4 Homerton High St, E4

Take a step back in time and visit the oldest house in East London. Five centuries of family history, changing styles and tastes are chronicled in this rare Tudor red-brick house.

Sutton House was built in 1535 by Sir Ralph Sadleir, a rising star at the court of Henry VIII. It became home to successive merchants, Huguenot silk-weavers, Victorian schoolmistresses and Edwardian clergy and, although altered over the years, remains an essentially Tudor house. Oak-panelled rooms and carved fireplaces survive intact and an exhibition tells the history of the house and its former occupants.

Don't miss your opportunity to tour the London 2012 Olympic Park site as part of the London Open House architectural festival.

explore

Guided bus tours will be operating from 1pm on Saturday 15 September and all day Sunday 16 September from the SCORE Complex on Oliver Road, Leyton.

An exhibition will feature sport activities, design of the Olympic Park and information from the Olympic Delivery Authority's partners.

Bus tours are limited and must be booked in advance. Phone 0203 023 6056 to secure your place or to find out more details. For safety reasons children under 12 years are not permitted.

If you miss this weekend or the tours are full, don't worry. This is the first of many opportunities for local people to visit the Olympic Park site.

My boy lollipop

One of the young people who took part in Stop Means Stop launch

Stop in the name of the law – that was the message of a major new campaign launched earlier this month.

Lollipop men and women patrolled the streets around the Town Hall to promote the 'Stop Means Stop' initiative.

Cllr Faizullah Khan, Speaker of Hackney, sent the Council patrols on their way with words of thanks for the work they do to ensure the safety of Hackney pedestrians.

Speaking at the launch on 3 September, he said: "It is unfortunate that many drivers do not realise it is a legal requirement to stop when instructed.

"School Crossing Patrols should be proud of themselves for their hard work in the community.

"The job they do helps to save lives and assists the safe passage of pedestrians, particularly young people, on their day-to-day journeys."

The campaign, which is funded by Transport for London (TfL), reminds drivers there is a legal requirement to stop at a School Crossing Patrol.

Drivers who fail to stop face a fine of up to £1,000, three penalty points and even disqualification.

The patrols were joined on the day by officers from the Council's Streetscene Team, who handed out information about the Stop Mean Stop campaign.

Representatives from TfL, Hammersmith & Fulham Council's Road Safety Team and two Hackney police Community Support Officers also attended to show their support for the campaign.

For more information about the campaign or the job, contact Diana Barks on: 020 8356 8339, or e-mail: diana.barks@hackney.gov.uk

Reclaim the streets

BMX bike displays, circus performers, music and murals are just some of the attractions of the 'In Town Without My Car' event.

Sections of Grove Road, in Victoria Park, are set to be grassed over for a street party with bunting, stalls and a host of activities for all to enjoy.

Hackney and Tower Hamlets councils have teamed up to organise the event from 11am to 5pm on 22 September. The aim is to raise awareness of the health and environmental benefits of sustainable travel, and the fun that can be had along the way.

Children and adults alike will be encouraged to reclaim their street by imagining it without cars in a road painting.

Other activities include face-painting, Fussball and spectacular roller-bike displays. Those who want to have a go themselves can try out recumbent bikes, with a laid-back riding position, and the Rollapaluzza. There will also be murals and art work on show.

Council staff will be on hand with information about sustainable transport, including the Hackney Car Club, school run schemes, public transport, walking and cycling.

Cllr Alan Laing, Cabinet Member for Neighbourhoods, said: "Sustainable transport is a priority for the Council and we have worked closely with Tower Hamlets to host this event. We know that local people are concerned about carbon emissions, congestion and parking on our roads. This will be a great opportunity for them to support our ongoing work to promote sustainable transport in the area and enjoy the activities planned."

The 277 bus will be diverted via Mare Street and Old Ford Road for the day. For more information contact Louisa Clarke on: 020 8356 8189 or e-mail: louisa.clarke@hackney.gov.uk

In brief

Fares cut by ten per cent

BUS fares are set to fall by 10 per cent this month for all Oyster Card users. A single fare will drop from £1 to 90p, from from 30 September, and a weekly bus pass will cost £13 instead of £14.

People on income support can also benefit from a half price reduction, introduced last month, making a single fare just 45p.

Linda Perks, London regional secretary of trade union group Unison, said the cut in bus fares 'will really help the lowest paid workers in London'.

She added: "Cheaper travel will improve opportunities for access to work and training."

People on income support need to apply for a photo-card to take advantage of the discount. Forms are available from the Post Office. For more info, visit:

www.london.gov.uk

Best foot forward

FIND out why the Capital is best seen on foot during London Walking Weekend from 15 to 16 September.

The event features free guided walks along the Thames Path National Trail and Jubilee Walkway from the South Bank every 30 minutes. Plus a walking treasure hunt for children and free guided walks in every London borough, including one around old Shoreditch village and Hoxton.

The aim of the TfL sponsored event is to get people to know their local walking routes better. For more info visit:

www.tfl.gov.uk/londonwalkingweekend

Free cycle maps

The latest edition of TfL's free London bike maps have been launched this month.

The set of 14 maps, developed with the London Cycle Campaign, are hard-wearing and contain a wealth of information to help people identify quick or quiet routes across the Capital – all ridden and recommended by experienced cyclists.

The maps are available ahead of the Hovis London Freewheel, a fun bike ride open to all on 23 September. Thousands are expected to take part and cycle through a 14km vehicle free area of central London past some of the Capital's most iconic sights. For more info visit:

www.londonfreewheel.com

The maps are available in cycle shops across London, alternatively, they can be ordered from:

Your Mayor & local councillors

Councillors are elected by the residents of Hackney, and serve for four years. The last elections were in May 2006.

Councillors have a range of responsibilities, including helping oversee Hackney Council and the services it provides.

They all hold 'advice surgeries', times when you can meet them and ask them to take up issues that may be of concern.

Generally councillors can help with Council related matters and the services delivered by Hackney Council, although if the matter is the responsibility of another person or organisation they can often point you in the right direction and tell you who you might need to see.

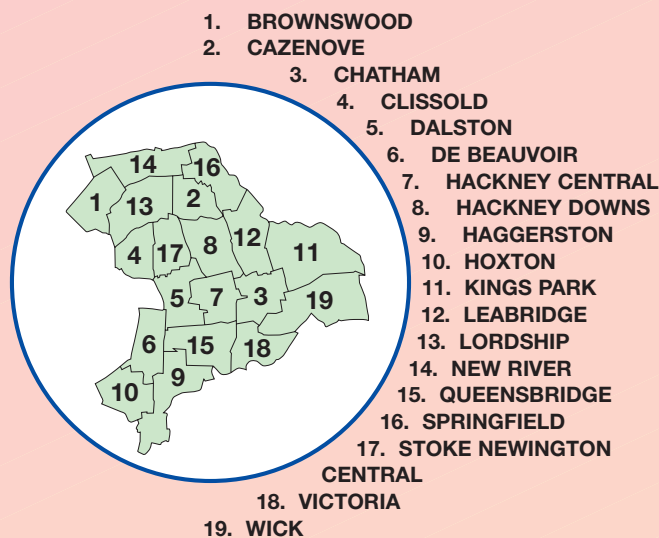

There are 57 councillors covering the borough representing areas called wards. These are below.

Please note some councillors do not hold surgeries in August due to the holidays. Please call the number below to check times and dates.

If you want to know which councillor covers your area call 020 8356 3000.

It will be an offence for any person in charge of a dog which defecates on any designated land not to remove the faeces. This offence will not apply to disabled people in charge of guide dogs for the blind or other support dogs unless their disability is such that it does not prevent them from being aware of and removing faeces

Anyone who commits an offence under the provisions of Order will be liable on conviction in the Magistrates Court to a fine of up to £1000.
The Council also intends to issue £80 Fixed Penalty Notices and anyone who fails to pay a Fixed Penalty Notice may be prosecuted.
